JAMES LEE. Superintendent. pilot. He waited for the signal of the Laura Lee, to let him know she was in her proper place in the channel down the bend. He kept his boat out close to the bar, where he felt it safe and the proper place to be, he being prevented by Bule I from signaling first. He did not hear the Leura Lee's signal until she was on him. Had Capt, Reed been per-mitted to signal first (he was on the ascend-ing steamer), he would have signaled prompt-FOR HALES POINT AND OSCEOLA Tri-Weekly U. S. changing the role, as it was first adopted, to give the ascending steamer first eignal, which does not deprive the descending steamer of the right of way of the choice.

It only notifies her on which side of the channel to descend. Every pilot knows a descending steamer is making double speed he is. It is very certain he will signal earlier and always feel safe he won't be run over. I heard four first class St. Logis and New Orleans pilots say to-day that they would testify they believe if there had been no change made in Rule I, or if the secending steamer had not been prevented from signaling first, the Luura Lee and City of Greenville could never have coilided.
